The circulation of a newspaper determines the value of its columns as an advertising medium. The NEWS-HERALD has by far the largest circulation of any paper in Hillsboro, Ohio, which fact advertisers would do well to bear in mind. Our lists are open to their inspection.

Jacob Seyler & Son are selling American watches at $7.50 to $10 each; clocks and jewelry equally low. Also have received a set of Mather's trial lenses and will test eyes for determining defects of the eye, and are now prepared to make spectacles to suit defective eyes. This does not interfere with their watch repairing department, as they give their most careful attention. Don't fail to call at the sign of the big watch when you want bargains.

Mr. J. B. Rowe has been elected agent for the F. C. A. of this place for the ensuing year. Mr. Rowe has performed his duties faithfully in the past and is a fit man for the place. The Association is thoroughly organized, and will endeavor to enforce the laws protecting dumb animals and children. Over-driving and over-loading horses and allowing teams to remain standing too long at the rack are all wrong, and deserve punishment. In Hillsboro, J. M. Hughes is President of the Society, and H. M. Ditty Secretary. Any information of ill treatment of animals should be reported to one of these officers or to the agent.

The Highland County Medical Society met in the Court House last Thursday, with a fair representation present. Davall, was admitted to full membership in the society. The election of officers was then taken up and resulted as follows: President, H. M. Brown; Recording Secretary, R. D. Gray; Corresponding Secretary, F. M. Thomas; Treasurer, S. J. Smith. The meeting then adjourned for dinner, after which the new President was elected, read a paper on "Things that should be and that should not be in the medical profession," and Dr. Trimble followed with an interesting essay on "Fibroid Diseases of the Stomach." Dr. John Matthews, of Buford, was received into membership, and a very entertaining informal discussion followed. The various committees were appointed. Dr. Trimble, Dr. Brown, Green, Smith and Hughes were delegated to represent the Society at the meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association, at Akron, O., the first week in June. The next meeting will be held on the second Thursday in July.

As was announced last week we are not allowed to make known the real name of the author, and our readers will be left to guess for the present. The story is carefully written and, as it deals with Ohio people and customs, possesses a peculiar interest for our readers. The first of the six chapters will appear

Dr. T. W. Davall, formerly a student in the office of Dr. H. M. Brown, of this place, and lately a graduate of the Ohio Medical College, has chosen a location at Marshall, where his ability and gentlemanly character will be recognized by the good people of the community.

Haverly's Minstrels appeared in Music Hall last Saturday evening before a large audience. The quartette of singers showed remarkable talent and elicited frequent applause, while the endmen, Messrs. Thompson and Peaseley, never failed to bring irrepressible laughter. Mr. Frank Hilton as a contortionist, on the climax, and the pseudo-doctor was indescribably comical.

It is a new and novel way to see the great cities of the world without the expense and fatigue of circumnavigating the globe. From what we hear and read in our exchanges we conclude that Philip Phillips presents the most realistic views incident to a tour of the world in his new entertainment entitled, "Around the World in a Chair of Song."

Mr. Phillips has been named for him to give this imaginary journey, interspersed with his inimitable singing, in our city April 23d and 24th—Friday and Saturday—at City Hall.

The Cincinnati Steam Heating Company brought suit against the Board of Infirmary Directors before Mayor Harman one day last week, claiming $120.32 for repairs on the heating apparatus at the Infirmary. The Board set up three defenses—the first, that suit should have been brought against the Infirmary Directors; the second, that the Board was not responsible, as the Superintendent had ordered the repairing without obtaining authority from the Board; the third, that there was no warranty upon the apparatus, that the machinery was defective, and that the company must therefore stand good for repairs. The case was decided in favor of defendants.

Holmes & Bro., have had their undertaking establishment on South High street, papered, painted and generally refitted, and it now presents as attractive an appearance as a tombstone repository can possess. They have been extending their stock and have on hand, all kinds of burial robes, trappings and linings, as well as handsome caskets of every description. The latter are of an ingenious contrivance to display its contents. Rot's look much neater and are more easily moved than any other kind of casket for the dead. Mr. Lewis Holmes has long experience in his business and understands how to do his duties perfectly and yet unostentatiously. The sad ceremonies of the funeral are all the more impressive for a careful management cause everything to move smoothly.

HUM OF INDUSTRY

Buzzing Away in a Back Alley.

An Unassuming Firm with a Big Bank Account.

A long row of low sheds running back from a neat-looking, two-story building, which, from the searlet hue of its exterior, seems to have been a victim of last fall's Republican rejection. Such is the description of the warehouse of W. Wolf & Co., located on an alley, opposite the depot, whose name might shock the truly fastidious. The buildings were erected last May, on the Rittenhouse property, a lease of the lot having been secured. From the outside, one would hardly suspect that the place was an interest centered in the homey structure. Inside, we found the business manager, Mr. J. Y. Dean, with his coat off and counting hard cash very intently. All around the rest of the office room were stacked large boxes, and three half-filled crates stood open. Mr. Dean informed us that he had then, on hand, Friday, about 2000 dozens of eggs and would probably receive 2000 dozens before the end of the week.

Just back of this room are the poultry pens and the slaughter house. The pens are capable of holding about four thousand fowls, and as many as two thousand have given up the ghost in one day in the slaughter house. The busiest season in this department is from a week before Thanksgiving to a short time after. Year's day. Then some thirty-five hands are employed, and the work of killing and dressing chickens and turkeys is carried on, on a large scale. The slaughter-house is fitted out with a blood-trap and a furnace holding two large kettles, and presents the appearance of an amateur sugar-camp. The fowls are killed and "roughed," the latter process consisting in removing the coarser feathers. The feathers are preserved and dried and command a better price on the market than the pluckings from live fowls on account of their contentment with the fowls which are left on the rural bluff for humanity's sake. After the tragedy, the fowls are turned over to a squad of colored women, who deftly remove the pin feathers, and the fowls are first subjected to a hot and then to a cold bath.

This brings the oil to the surface of the skin and gives it the most a good color and the toothsome insects are ready for the market as dressed fowls.

In a single week the firm averages a shipment of 7000 dozens of eggs, and commands the huckster trade of Highland and large portions of Adams and Brown counties. Poultry and eggs are shipped to Baltimore and New York, chiefly to the latter city. But little is being done in the slaughter-house at present, although, some of the animals suffer death each Monday. The eggs are being loaded and large shipments are being made to the city.

Mr. H. W. Wolf is a prominent business man of Greenfield, a member of council there, and sustains a good reputation everywhere. He embarked in the poultry business about fifteen years ago with a small amount of capital, and by care and thrift, has amassed an enviable fortune. He is the junior member of the firm and is known to us as a young man of amiable disposition, energy and good business habits. They are carrying on a profitable business, as a few glances at their account book will demonstrate, and as addressees to the business enterprise of our little city, they deserve the recognition of everybody.

GREENFIELD FIRE.

Eight Thousand Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

NEWS-HERALD Special.

At about 4 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the Dunlap building on the northwestern corner of Church and Washington streets, and having gained full headway, completely destroyed the property. S. W. Allen's large stock of boots and shoes and the outfit of S. W. Allen's photograph gallery, located upstairs, were destroyed. The libraries, fixtures, furnishings, etc., in the law offices of William Hughes and Allen Caldwell and in Dr. M. Dunlap's office were also lost. Large and valuable many notes, mortgages and other papers were destroyed. The losses, all told, as calculated by parties who should know, amount to about $8,000. The structure was a frame of light pine and burned like paper. By six o'clock nothing was left of the building and its contents save a pile of ruins of ashes. The heaviest loss is upon Mr. S. W. Allen, who had just got in a large stock of new goods. The insurance policies in the hands of the several occupants cover about one-half the total loss. The fire company did good work in checking the flames, and through their efforts the residence of Dr. W. W. Wilson and William Adams and the building of Mr. Henry Free, on the opposite side of the street, were saved, though all three of them were more or less scorched. The heat was so intense as to crack the plate glass windows of Dr. M. Dunlap's building, which was in the north room, occupied by Messrs. Caldwell and Hughes, but before sufficient force could be collected to do effective work, the flames had spread all over the building. Some suppose the configuration may have been the work of an incendiary, while others hold that the fire might have been smoldering all night and burst out at last with irresistible force. Only a few articles of trifling value were saved.

Beller Explosion.

SAMANTHA, April 10th, 1886.

On last Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock our citizens were startled by a terrific explosion, which shook every house in the town to its foundation. It was but a moment till about all the people were out in the yards and streets to ascertain the cause of the explosion. A little while later the cause was ascertained, and a number of persons were heard to exclaim, "Mike's boiler is busted." Your correspondent was on the spot in less than two minutes and to understand the cause of the explosion of things about the building would be futile. The farther end of the boiler from the furnace had given away, throwing a large stream of steam and hot water several rods and demolishing the building covering it. The boiler, which is some 12 feet long, was lifted and moved for some distance from the spot where it was exploded. The boiler is stored and where the grinding is done. There it encountered some heavy timbers and its course was changed to the right and to the east end of the building, through which it went, tearing down the entire end of the building and landing some four or five rods distant, by the side of the Leesburg pike. Wheat, corn, flour, and meal were mixed with the snow in rich profusion. Six persons were in the building at the time of the accident, but fortunately none were hurt, as they were all in other parts of the mill, than that through which the monster missile passed. The proprietors will be compelled to suspend business on account of the loss, unless the citizens of the town and surrounding country come to the rescue by subscribing liberally for the purpose of making the needed repairs. A flouring mill is a great convenience here, and this one should be refitted and kept going.

Our First Spring Opening.

GUTHRIE GETS THERE.

The Telephone That Will Revolutionize the World.

Fame and Fortune Waiting for a Leeburg Inventor.

Mr. J. T. Guthrie has spent six or eight years of unceasing toil on this wonderful invention, and has at last succeeded in obtaining a patent on transmitter and receiver as well, and is now prepared to place before the American people for their inspection one of the most useful inventions ever conceived by man. As stated in a former communication, Mr. Guthrie tested it on a three-mile line, and the ticking of a watch could plainly be heard. But this is not all. It has also been tested on a thousand mile relay, and communication can be carried on at that distance as distinctly as though talking face to face. This telephone will operate successfully far thousands of miles as it will for a distance of one mile. It is operated by a direct current of electricity, and not by induced currents, as are others, and so induction coils are needed. The articulation of speech is made by a natural and mechanical disturbance of the current, the positive and negative poles, which are brought near to or in contact with the diaphragm. One pole is made of a close and compact natural production of the earth, and is a good conductor, the other pole is of an open and porous nature, and not a good conductor. Consequently, the natural and unnatural poles make a natural disturbance, making it the most sensitive transmitter possible. The transmission is made by the disturbance of the electrical current at the poles by opening and closing the circuit, as in the case of telegraphy, which is done by his system, by simply speaking against the diaphragm, which causes the current to open at every sound uttered against it. This is something never before accomplished by the telephone company. Prof. Bell, of Bell Telephone Company, has offered $100,000 to anyone who would produce a telephone successfully operated without the use of induction coil, and we are ready to say that Mr. Guthrie can rightfully claim the money. This telephone is destined to take the lead of all others in the near future, and will revolutionize the immense fortune out of this his most useful invention. Mr. Guthrie is daily in receipt of letters from all parts of the United States from parties wishing to purchase the entire patent, but he knows when he has a good thing, and is in no hurry to sell. The cost of his instrument will be about ten dollars per month, and we are glad to know that the great telephone monopoly of the present day is broken at last.

DEUBER WATCH COMPANY.

Hillsboro's Opportunity to Secure a Mammoth Manufacturing.

Hearing that the Deuber Company was about to move its shops, Mr. Jacob Seyler has been corresponding with the managers, and in response to his invitations the following letter has been received:

NEWPORT, Ky., April 10th, 1886. MESSRS. Seyler & Son, Hillsboro, Ohio. GENTLEMEN—We are in receipt of your calling attention to facilities your city offers for the location of our shops. We will be in operation in one year after ground is broken and ready to employ 200 men.

We want a piece of land, at least fifteen acres in extent, on which we will erect factory three stories and basement, 300 feet long, and in rear of same another factory of same size and height. This will be in operation in one year after ground is broken and ready to employ 200 men.

As soon as we can conveniently dispose of or rent one of our present factories we will add an additional 200 hands to the 200 of our workmen. We paid in wages last year some $300,000, and do a business of $2,000,000, employing 800 hands. This would add with their families at least 3,000 people to the city. We are open to any proposition that may be made.

Yours respectfully, JOHN C. DEUBER, President.
